Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—(Special.)—The secretary of the navy yesterday awarded the contract for the construction of the battleship Louisiana to the Newport News Shipbuilding company at its bid of $3,900,000. The bureau officers to whom the bids were referred said there were no indications of combinations on the part of the bidders.

The Newport News company has challenged the navy department to show whether this company or the New York navy yard can turn out a battleship in the shortest period of time. The shipbuilding company is hampered by an abundance of new construction, including much government work and a lot of repair jobs in its own yards, while the New York navy yard is engaged only in repair work. On the other hand, the New York navy yard, which is to build the Connecticut, must organize a shipbuilding force and modernize its plant.

OPERATORS ARE VERY CONFIDENT THAT THEY ARE IN THE RIGHT

Say That Yesterday's Conference in Washington Has Resulted in No Definite End to the Present Anthracite Coal Trouble Having Been Reached by Arbitration.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.)

New York, Oct. 4.—Nothing was indicated this morning in the attitude of the coal presidents of any change of their opinion on their arrival in New York from Washington. They seemed confident that the strike would now have to continue until the end had been reached and the miners had enough and gave in. They would add nothing to the remarks made by them before the President yesterday afternoon and refused to discuss the situation. According to those in close touch with the anthracite situation the miners will have to struggle along until they at last give in.

NOT WORRIED AT ALL.

The coal operators did not seem at all worried over the results of the conference, and stated on authority that it was not at all probable that the President would call out United states troops to their aid. When asked the question point blank, Mr. Truesdale said: "From what he said I do not think he will." Chairman Thomas of the Erie said: "So far as I see there is nothing more for us to do."

CONFERRED WITH ROOT UNTIL LATE

SITUATION AS IT NOW STANDS.

President Roosevelt failed to end the coal strike as he had hoped by his conference with the strike leaders and with the leading coal operators. His whole plan of conciliation has ended in what is apparently a gigantic bluff, on the part of the coal operators, to see the thing through and in a way they resented the interference of the President in their affairs. Their whole manner yesterday was one of bluff and braggadocio and their answers to his carefully worded appeal to their patriotism and citizenship was met in a far different spirit from that offered by the President. The conference failed to accomplish what President Roosevelt intended it should. The coal situation is today in the same condition as it was yesterday, as it has been for weeks past except for the fact that today there is less coal in the country and winter is a day nearer to us than it was yesterday.

This failed and one of the things left for the President to do is to call an extra session of congress together to end the struggle at once. Congress can take possession of one or more of the coal carrying railways and appoint a receiver to operate it. It can take possession of the coal mine for a public necessity and appoint a receiver to operate it and thus give to the country the necessary coal. That this will follow seems to be the opinion of the politicians throughout the country. This is the only solution of the problem left unless the miners themselves, moved by patriotism, should voluntarily return to work to save the country from ruin and disaster.

President Roosevelt is much disappointed. He had hoped to have the strike ended by the meeting. He had hoped that today the coal miners would return to their work and in a few weeks the fear of a coal famine would be ended. He has done what he could in a peaceful way to end the strike and now he will doubtless take sterner and more strenuous measures. Roosevelt is not a man to give up, not a man to be beaten, for the one reason that he never has taken a cause for his own that he was not sure that he was right upon before he went ahead. His action of yesterday, sick man that he was, in attempting to end the strike that is impoverishing the people of the United States has endeared him to the hearts of all.

ROOSEVELT'S PLEA TO OPERATORS.

"I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are three parties affected by the situation in the anthracite trade—the operators, the miners and the general public. I speak for neither the operators nor the miners, but for the general public. The questions at issue which led to the situation affect immediately the parties concerned—the operators and the miners—but the situation itself vitally affects the public. As long as there seemed to be a reasonable hope that these matters could be adjusted between the parties, it did not seem proper to me to intervene in any way.

"I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the form of a winter fuel famine impel me after much anxious thought to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I personally can to bring to an end a situation which has become literally intolerant.

"I wish to emphasize the character of the situation and to say that its gravity is such that I am constrained urgently to insist that each one of you realize the heavy burden of responsibility upon him. We are upon the threshold of winter with an almost already existing coal famine, the future terrors of which we can hardly appreciate. The evil possibilities are so far-reaching, so appalling, that it seems to me that you are not only justified in sinking, but required to sink for the time being, any tenacity as to your respective claims in the matter at issue between you.

"In my judgment the situation imperatively requires that you meet upon the common plane of the necessities of the public. With all the earnestness there is in me I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people.

"I do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism—to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifices for the general good.

WILL REGISTER WOMEN VOTERS

SCHOOL TEACHERS WILL ASSIST IN THE WORK.

WOMEN MAY VOTE THIS YEAR

Superintendent Buell Speaks to the Art League on "The School Out of Politics."

Teachers in the public schools will relieve many of the women of the city of the bother of registering their names next Tuesday in order that they may vote on the school questions at the coming election in November. Each teacher will prepare a complete list of names as possible in her territory and these lists will be given to the boards of registration. This is the plan that has been proposed by people who have the interests of the school system at heart and who feel that the question has not been sufficiently agitated so that women realize their rights, their privileges and their duty in this campaign. It is thought that many women do not know that they are entitled to vote and that those who do are not inclined to regard the matter seriously. To many voting is a bugbear and they dismiss it from their minds without a thought.

To Interest Women It is hoped by those interested that this indifference will be dispelled before election day and that the women will awaken to the fact that the right of suffrage imposes a duty on them. In order that these women may be duly registered without inconvenience to them the school teachers will assume a large part of the burden.

By the registration laws, personal registration is not required next Tuesday, but on the second day, Tuesday, Oct. 21, voters must register personally or by affidavit.

Endorsed By Art League The offer of the school teachers was proposed before the Janesville Art League by Supt. H. C. Buell yesterday afternoon and the advice of the club women was asked. Although some of the women were in favor of showing their colors by attending to their own registration personally as well as by voting, the League endorsed the proposed plan heartily and voted to lend its assistance by furnishing the list of its members to the teachers.

Supt. Buell's Address Members of the Art League listened with the greatest interest to the brief address which Supt. Buell gave before them on "School Out of Politics," yesterday afternoon. The address was in connection with the regular meeting of the League which was held in the club room at the home of Mrs. W. H. Ashcraft, North Jackson street.

In his introduction Supt. Buell said that he would not be true to his duty if he did not embrace the opportunity to add his influence to the endeavor to take the schools out of the whirlpool of politics and bring them to the people in a more rational way than through partisan politics. He would be wanting in appreciation if he failed to recognize the great work which the Art League had already done for the schools in securing school room decoration as a regular feature of the school policy.

Law A Back Number He then gave a brief review of the situation. In 1848 when the state constitution was formed there was inserted a clause providing for the election of a state superintendent to be elected in the same time and in the same manner as the governor and fixing the salary at $1200. This well enough in the pioneer days but the public school system is now so large and important that the old machinery is no longer adequate. If the provision were an act of the legislature it could be repealed without much trouble but it is a part of the constitution and the vote of the people is required to amend it.

Women May Vote On the question of the proposed amendment and the election of the state superintendent, women are allowed to vote this year for the first time in Wisconsin and it is vital that they should understand the importance of the situation. The present system is faulty in this respect.

Fortunate Accidents In the first place the manner of nominations leaves the office to the accident of politics. In the last fifty years Wisconsin has had only two able prominent educators in the office. One was Robert Graham and for the past four years the state has been served by its foremost educator, L. D. Harvey. These instances were merely the result of fortunate accidents and the reason that Mr. Harvey was not re-nominated was purely political. Now the people must choose between what the politicians have given them.

The office is one of the most important in the state, affecting directly half a million of school children, 20,000 school officers, 15,000 teachers aside from the high school superintendents and teachers.

Other Faults The system is also faulty because of the time of election and the salary does not attract the best talent as a rule. The term of office should begin with the school year, the first of June, and while the legislature has dodged the salary question by hiring the man, not the official, to make a report for which $3,000 is paid, this is plainly illegal and will not always be tolerated.

The proposed amendment corrects these evils and provision has been made for women to vote. The speaker said that while each woman must decide for herself whether or not she should vote, he wished to impress upon the women the real need of the reform. He felt that if the amendment was not carried this year it never would be and the office would remain the football of politics.

Amendment Needed The average politician add the average man doesn't realize the importance of the office. The amendment is needed. It is of vital importance to the schools and is an entering wedge for further legislation. The speaker believed this to be the beginning of an era when the burdens of the school would be thrown on the shoulders of the mothers; who are intensely interested, as well as on the fathers.

Duty of Women He felt that the state had not given the women their rights but their duties and he trusted that the women would regard voting as a duty, not as a doubtful privilege.

Appeal to Club Women After Supt. Buell's address a letter was read from Mrs. Theodora Youmans, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, urging club women to work and vote for the proposed amendment.

NO FOOTBALL FOR PLUCKY STROTHERS

He is Very Ill, and the University of Northwestern Team is in Despair.

By the illness of Strotthers, the crack end of the Northwestern football team, and formerly of Beloit, the growing confidence of the university has been again sunk in gloom. He was taken sick with typhoid fever yesterday and placed in the Evanston hospital. His temperature was high, and the attending physician said that the indications were that the sickness would be serious. There is little probability that he will be in the game again this season.

Ill a Week It was at the game of the Naperville Athletics last Saturday that it was first noticed that he was sick, but he played to the end of the contest and it was thought that he would be better in a few days. Monday night he was out in a suit, but he did not get into the game. From that time on he grew rapidly worse, and when a physician was summoned yesterday morning the case was diagnosed as malignant typhoid fever.

Effect on Team Strotther's illness has proved a great blow to the Purples. The plucky little end who came to Evanston this fall after a year as an instructor at Tuskegee Institute for the negroes of the South, previous to which time he had played with the Line City college, had been generally looked upon as the saviour of the scattered hopes of "Doc" Hollister's aggregation, and his illness means a good deal.

WITH THE ATHLETES.

After the showing made by the Northwestern against the Chicago Dentals on Wednesday, Dr. Hollister has ordered a thorough shake up of the team.

Stagg has proscribed secret practice for the Maroons, and a part of the work each day will be behind barred gates.

Knox college has only been taking light practice for several days in preparation for their game with Chicago today.

Coach Hollister has been rapidly getting the Beloit men into shape and the practice has gained in snap, and vim each day. Eleven men have been put on the training table, and two or three others are in training at their homes.

On account of a stiffness resulting from a practice game early in the week, several members of the Princeton varsity squad have been put out of the game temporarily.

NOLAN DECIDES ON THE SPEAKERS

WRITES GENERAL BRYANT, SPOONER AND COOPER ARE ENOUGH.

DECLINES M'VICKER'S VISIT

Beloit Will Not Hear Spooner, Owing to the Formation of Plans Now Made.

According to the official route list of official spell-binders sent out from headquarters in Milwaukee, Janesville was billed to have a speech from E. W. McVickers on Oct. 13. This was the plan of the central committee chairman, but it will doubtless be changed and Mr. McVicker will spend the night of October 13 in some other city rather than Janesville, explaining away the mistaken ideas that exist regarding Governor LaFollette throughout the state.

When the name of the speaker and the date were sent to County Chairman Nolan, he immediately wrote back to Milwaukee that Janesville did not care to hear Mr. McVicker and that the county committee would not be responsible for his entertainment. He stated to General Bryant that all the efforts of the Rock county republicans would be devoted to Senator Spooner who is billed to come October 21 and that they did not want any other speakers at present.

Spooner's Plans Senator Spooner has written several friends in the city that he will be in Janesville on the date scheduled. He will probably be given an informal reception before and after his address. The senator wrote to Chairman Nolan that he found that it would be impossible to speak at Beloit as he had been requested and that Janesville would be the only place in Rock county that he could talk in. He was sorry about Beloit but his plans have been made and to change them would mean a considerable minor campaign outtings during the next four weeks.

Cooper May Come Chairman Nolan is in hopes that he can secure Congressman Cooper for one and perhaps two speeches some time after Senator Spooner has been here. Beloit will also have a speech from the congressman and will have several minor campaign outtings during the next four weeks.

"DENVER EXPRESS" AT OPERA HOUSE

Sensational Melodrama Holds the Boards and Entertains Audience Last Night.

Last night the audience at the opera house witnessed the sensational melodrama entitled "The Denver Express." There was the usual number of hair breadth escapes, startling exposures and caught-in-the-act situations to suit the most exacting spectator. The cast was large and the play fairly well staged although the moving train effects were about as unsatisfactory as usual with mechanical adjuncts of this kind. Pleasing specialties were introduced by Deda Walker and James Callahan and Samuel Marron. The latter team did some catchy song and dance work. The play is of the wild west type and full of exciting melodramatic incidents.

Retail market men in Milwaukee have been asked to combine to fight the beef trust.

GRAVEL PIT HAS
CLOSED DOWNST. PAUL'S INDUSTRY SUSPENDS
WORK FOR SEASON.

134,000 CARLOADS TAKEN OUT

During the Past Ten Years the Company Used 135 Acres of Gravel.

Work in the big St. Paul gravel pit at Rockton has been suspended for the season. It is almost impossible to realize the amount of work done in this pit. Since last April, 134,000 cars or about 42,000 square yards of gravel have been removed from the pit and used on the Iowa division between Savannah and Rock Island. The steam shovel has been kept running night and day and twenty-two train crews have been kept busy handling the gravel.

135 Acres of Ground
During the last ten years the St. Paul company have used up "135 acres of gravel 45 feet deep at Rockton exhausting two pits. This year they purchased 57 acres more and two thirds of this has been used up.

Marriage Rhymes.

(From the Philadelphia Inquirer.)
To every woman, the subject of marriage is interesting, and, therefore, no apology is needed for recalling some quaint sayings and customs relating to it. When a maiden is asked by her lover to name the happy day which will make her his own, of course she thinks of what will be a suitable time. She avoids the season of Lent, for if married in Lent you are sure to repent; and then if she be prudent she remembers the following adage:

Monday for wealth,
Tuesday for health,
Wednesday for the best day of all;
Thursday for crosses,
Friday for losses,
Saturday no luck at all.

There are countless sayings about marriage which have come down to us from long ago, many of which still find favor, such as "Marry in haste and repent at leisure," and, though it is not so well known, "Great joy shown in a bride's face presages misfortune." In the latter sayings, praise of that old-fashioned virtue reserve, is evidently intended. "Happy is the bride that the sun shines on," is often a saying quoted by anxious gazers at the weather on the morning of the day when some fair friend of theirs is to be married.

"Thrice a bridemaid never a bride," is remembered by many a fair damsel who has twice acted as bridesmaid and who is again asked to attend a bride to the altar, but modern girls are strong-minded enough to defy fate, and to take the oath of bridesmaid as may be desired. The choice of color in the matter of a wedding dress is most important, not merely because one color is more becoming than another, but because

Married in white, you have chosen aright;
Married in gray, you will go far away;

Married in black, you will wish yourself back;
Married in red, you will wish yourself dead;

Married in green; ashamed to be seen;
Married in blue, he will always be true;

Married in pearl, you will live in a whirl;
Married in yellow, ashamed of your fellow;

Married in brown, you will live out of town;
Married in pink, your spirits, will sink.

United States Will Never Lack Coal.

The basis of all iron and steel making is reliable coking coal and iron ores suited to the Bessemer or the basic process of producing steel. The Connellsville district in Western Pennsylvania carries the largest known seam (9 feet) of high grade coking coal. But the district is distinctly limited, and at present rate of mining, will be exhausted within a generation. Nature, however, was lavish in providing reserves. The developments of the past ten years among the vast bituminous coal regions of West Virginia, southwestern Virginia, southeastern Kentucky, and eastern Tennessee, have revealed deposits of high-grade coking coal that would seem to be ample to supply the blast furnaces of the world for centuries to come. It is only a question of building railroads, opening mines, and constructing coke ovens.

Not all good bituminous coal will make coke. Indeed, in all the great coal fields of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and important coal sections of Tennessee and Kentucky, there has not been found an acre of coking coal. Draw a circle around the Connellsville section in Pennsylvania including the so-called "Mountain" operations adjacent on the east; another around the section where Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee meet; another around the Warrior coal field in Alabama, and a fourth around a newly developed district in Colorado and Utah and you have all the known sources of fuel supply for iron and steel making in the United States. It is true that anthracite coal is still used in connection with coke, in the blast furnaces of eastern Pennsylvania, but it is a small and diminishing factor. The circles above indicated, however, embrace deposits so reliable and so extensive that a rate of consumption many times greater than the present could go on for generations without raising the first question of exhaustion. Archer Brown, in The Engineering Magazine for October.

The Roosevelt at Home.

Under the household management of Mrs. Roosevelt the White House keeps early hours. As a rule retirement comes before midnight unless there is a dinner or a public or semi-public function. Mrs. Roosevelt loves to gather her family together at breakfast if at no other time. Now and then Miss Alice substitutes for her mother. The breakfast is entirely informal, and during the meal household matters are considered. Rarely is it that a stranger comes to table at breakfast—October Woman's Home Companion.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Second Assembly District.

Notice is hereby given that a convention for the Second Assembly district of Rock county, Wisconsin, will be held at the circuit court house in the court house in the city of Janesville, Wisconsin, on the 15th day of October, 1902, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for the assembly to represent said district to be voted for in the general election in November next, and of electing delegates to the national convention to be held at the following places and on the following dates: 7:30 o'clock p. m. and remains for the period of one hour.

Caucuses.

In accordance with the above call, caucuses of an irregular character of Janesville in said district now hereby called to meet in the several wards for the purpose of electing delegates to said convention, on the 15th day of October, 1902, which caucuses will be held at the following places and on the following dates: 7:30 o'clock p. m. and remains for the period of one hour.

The history of the industrial changes which have of late been occurring with such rapidity is to be found in its most interesting form in the careers of the "Captains of Industry" now before the public in connection with the larger interests of production, transportation and finance. A knowledge of these men, their derivation, their leading characteristics, weaknesses and abilities, throws much light upon the news of the day in which their names constantly appear in making the effort to present a fairly complete series of studies of these men The Cosmopolitan Magazine has furnished the public with one of the most interesting serials ever published. In the October number H. C. Frick, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, David H. Moffat, Woodrow Wilson and H. H. Vreeland furnish interesting studies.

The Stubborn Coal Strike.

The unfortunate anthracite coal strike had lasted for some five months as these pages were closed for the press late in September, with the almost complete deadlock still unbroken. The group of associated railroads which have formed a monopoly in anthracite coal mining, and had established an artificial control over output, price, and market, were squarely met, on the other hand, by the combination of men who had taken advantage of the Pennsylvania laws relating to the qualifications of miners to establish almost equally firm monopoly control over the supply of labor necessary to operate the mines. The really aggrieved and defrauded party in all this situation has been the public which has been shamefully inconvenienced. The operators, who had made a tight monopoly out of mining and selling coal, are immediately responsible. It is not satisfactory, therefore, that these operators should come before the public with arguments and complaints about the unreasonableness of their laborers. Men who have assumed to acquire control of an article essential to common use and welfare ought to be wise and skillful enough to keep on good terms with the workingmen. They are rather absurd when they affect an injured air because coal miners associate themselves in trade unions for the purpose of making the best contract they possibly can in the sale of their labor. Private ownership of coal mines is subject to the public policy and well-being; it is not at all an indefensible right. The right of workingmen, on the other hand, to stand out for the best terms possible, and to associate themselves for the better accomplishment of their purposes, is too fundamental to be questioned. The miners have been perfectly willing from the outset to submit their claims to any sort of impartial arbitration. The operators, on the other hand, have never for a moment dared to arbitrate anything. The only reasonable answer from the standpoint of the aggrieved public to the stubborn operators is simply this: Men who refused to arbitrate ought to be men skillful enough in the conduct of their business to be able to carry it on without break or interruption, and without annoying the public with the friction of their internal problems.—From "The Progress of the World," in The American Monthly Review of Reviews for October.

Declines in Hardware.

"Recently the purchases abroad have extended to steel rails and structural shapes. Quotations are fully sustained on these products, but the inequalities of the market are shown by declines in sheets, wire nails, and bar wire, while the tin plates are dull, and efforts are still being made to retain business abroad by special wage arrangements. It is interesting to note that a year ago tin plates were being imported freely because of labor controversies.

Cotton in Firmly Held.

"Supplies of cotton goods do not accumulate in first hands, the demand continuing to keep pace with production, which holds prices steady. Few export sales are reported, not through any lack of inquiries, but owing to the fact that sellers will make no concessions. Wool averaged slightly higher in sympathy with the London sale, but further declines took place in hides and leather has become dull. New England shoe shops have received large orders for winter goods, assuring activity for two or three months at some factories.

Failure Statistics.

"Strictly commercial failures in the United States during the first nine months of 1902 numbered 8,676, with defaulted liabilities of $85,407,490. Last year there were 8,083 failures for $80,560,852. In addition there were 47 failures of banks and other financial institutions with liabilities of $28,027,498, against 61 in 1901, involving $17,235,554. While the exhibit is less satisfactory than last year's, only one other year during the last two decades made as favorable a showing."

BRISK BUSINESS

LABOR SITUATION IS BETTER

Numerous Voluntary Concessions to the Workers Have Been Made and There is Less Controversy Than Usual on That Score.

New York, Oct. 4.—R. G. Dun &amp; Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"Distribution of merchandise shows no diminution, and prospects are bright for continued activity. Dealers in many lines are urgent for prompt shipments, calling upon jobbers and manufacturers for goods already overdue. This indication of reduced stocks is a good sign, and tends to sustain quotations.

"Western reports are especially favorable and the early marketing of cotton has brought distinct improvement at the south. Voluntary advances in wages have been announced in a number of instances, while the labor situation is more satisfactory, although not entirely free from controversy.

Get More Cars.

"Transportation facilities have improved in the coke region, where congestion was becoming severe, and railway earnings thus far reported for September exceed last year's by 94 per cent.

"Pig iron furnaces are receiving larger consignments of coke, and there is less interruption because of fuel scarcity. The situation is by no means satisfactory, however, and production of iron and steel would expand considerably if facilities were normal. Much of the relief has come from large imports, the extent of which is not generally appreciated. During August alone pig iron imports were 79,447 tons, and for eight months 257,210 tons, valued at $4,676,649, while receipts of steel billets were worth still more.

Declines in Hardware.

BOOM DETROIT MEETING.

Mayor Maybury Calls Committees to Make Preparations.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 4.—As soon as Mayor Maybury learned that President Roosevelt's conference with the mine operators and mine workers had not resulted in a settlement of the anthracite strike, he announced that citizens' and common council committees would meet to take final action regarding all details for the reception of the 1,000 delegates who are expected here next Thursday to take part in the national conference to devise a way to secure a supply of hard coal.

FRENCH MINE STRIKE GROWS

Government Gives Promise to Try and Secure Desired Legislation.

Paris, Oct. 4.—The strike of the French coal miners is spreading, and 12,000 men are now idle. It is reported that at a secret meeting of the federated miners it was unanimously agreed that the order for a general strike be directed especially against the mine owners. Prime Minister Combes has informed the miners' national committee that the government will do its utmost to pass legislation providing for a working day of eight hours, and for indemnity and pensions for persons meeting with accidents due to their employment. M. Combes refuses to deal with the question of a minimum wage.

TYPHOON KILLS MANY MINERS

Three Hundred Japanese Perish in the Ashio Copper District.

Tokio, Japan, Oct. 4.—The Ashio copper mine district, which is a blot on the civilization of Japan, was visited by a terrific typhoon in which 300 people perished. The Ashio district is noted for the wholesale poisoning of its population by slow degrees by the impregnation of copper. The mine employs 12,000 men and the mortality among them is higher than in any other mine in the world. The Japanese government frequently has been asked to intervene, but has never done so.

Boy Football Victim.

Des Moines, Oct. 4.—Glenn Hunter, aged 12 years, was injured, probably fatally, in a football game between school teams. He is a son of Edward M. Hunter, a capitalist and a former postmaster of this city.

MORAL REFORM.

One warm evening last summer, two men stood on a street corner in the residence district of the city, engaged in earnest conversation. One of them was well dressed, clean shaven, and looked prosperous and happy. The other was shabby in appearance, and his voice and manner indicated that he was just recovering from a spree.

They were evidently old time friends, and it was plain to be seen that a bond of sympathy influenced the stronger of the two as he placed his hand on the shoulder of the unfortunate man, and said in a kindly voice, "Come John, I'll go home with you and we'll talk the matter over with the wife, and then you must make one more effort to reform."

"But I tell you its no use Tom, I've lost my grip, and my will power of resistance is entirely gone. I have reformed, and reformed again, and I haven't the heart to make any more promises to Mary. She has no confidence in me and I don't blame her, I wish to God she had never married me, and I wish I was dead and out of the way of temptation."

"Listen to me a minute, John, and believe me when I tell you I haven't lost confidence in you. When you tell me that you can't stop drinking, I want to tell you that you can. Did you ever see a man any lower down than I was, and don't you remember what a crazy appetite I had for drink? Of course you do, and I quit it by the exercise of will and honest effort, and you are going to do the same."

"But Tom I am out of work, out of money, no credit, no nerve, and but little disposition to make the fight. Tom, go on home and don't bother with me, it don't much matter where I go, or what becomes of me."

"I know just how you feel, for I have had the same experience, but I am going to stay by you and put you on your feet. There is a good job of work waiting for you, and I will see that your family is taken care of until you get a start," and the two men passed down the street, arm in arm to the little home, to talk the matter over with the faithful wife. A month later the shabby house was transformed, and the joy of other years, like a white winged dove of peace, came back to abide in the home, and all because a brother man extended a helping hand in time of need.

This little incident represents a type of practical temperance work, that is all too rare, and that merits the most earnest commendation. The man who performs it may not call himself a christian, and he may not be identified with any church, but the order of service rendered is christian service, and back of it is the subtle influence of christianity.

Many good people are impressed with the notion that serving the Lord, is rendering homage to some supernatural being whose throne is established in some far off land beyond the blue expanse of sky, and so distant that the strongest glass fails to penetrate or reveal its mysteries.

This abode, called Heaven, where the good of all nations, assemble at the close of life to spend the endless cycles of eternity, is so distorted in the minds of some good people, that they neglect the work close at hand and imagine that praise and song is the highest order of service. An old poet expressed the attitude of these people, when he wrote, "I could sit and sing myself away to everlasting bliss." The pearly gates, the streets of gold, the harp of a thousand strings, and the great anthem chorus, are so fascinating in anticipation, that the homely work of everyday life is too commonplace to command serious attention.

This is all a mistaken notion, and not conducive to practical christian work. It is well at the sunset of life, when the sands are running low, and the feet touch the border of the land so full of mystery beyond, to rest content in a faith that penetrates the veil, and fills the heart with hope and satisfaction, but to fold the hands in the middle of the journey, and sacrifice energy to anticipation, is to lead the life of a dreamer destitute of effort or result.

This world is a great battle field, where the forces of good and evil are contending for the mastery at every turn of the wheel. The forces is nothing miraculous or supernatural, and are ever present as the common enemy of humanity. When vanquished or held in control there is nothing miraculous or supernatural about the methods employed.

Human hands and brain, inspired by a human heart, touched by the spirit of the Master, perform the work in homely and practical ways.

This warfare when intelligently conducted on the side of right, recognizes the fact that the work of life is delegated to human hands, and unless accomplished by them, that it will never be performed.

The spirit that governs, where the enemy is frequently vanquished, and the victories most signal, is the spirit of mutual helpfulness.

The man or the woman that has learned the art of self-government, and who has established a kingdom that is controlled by righteousness, is delinquent in duty, if the ranks are forsaken for a life of self-satisfied ease.

There are weak brothers and sisters on every hand who are waging an unequal warfare. The enemy of passion or appetite holds them in relentless grasp. No invisible hand, is outstretched to help them, for that is the work of human hands.

There is something tangible, and real about the close touch of humanity when it is inspired by a spirit of common brotherhood the touch is always magnetic. It is the height of folly for good people to wrap themselves in a cloak of self-righteousness, and with a "holier than thou" air, assume that they are good, and that it is just as easy for everybody to do right as wrong, if they are so disposed. Many people are out of state prison, because the environments of life, shielded them from crime.

While this warfare of life is an individual warfare, the victories gained, or the defeats suffered, are possessed of a twofold significance, for the character of society, of communities, and of municipalities, is determined by the unit of society, which is always the individual.

Much is said about the public conscience, and many people relieve themselves of personal responsibility by refusing to recognize the obligations of citizenship.

It is frequently said that society is as good as people care to have it, and that cities are governed as well as popular sentiment demands. The statement is true, but the confession is a humiliation. It is so easy to shirk responsibility, under the popular plea, "I am not my brother's keeper" that communities suffer and gross injustice is tolerated.

The city of Janesville is passing through an experience of this kind at the present time, and yet not a hand is raised to stop the evil. Ignorance cannot be pleaded as an excuse, for every intelligent citizen is fully informed as to conditions. Public confidence is betrayed, public money squandered, property rights imperiled, and all because moral courage is lacking to raise a hand in protest.

There are dozens of families along the line of streets that are undergoing a process of what is called improvement, who will be obliged to mortgage their little homes to pay assessments, and when the bill is paid, they will have nothing to show for it but a fancy curbing, and as street that the weather will demolish in five years without the aid of traffic.

Contracts are let in violation of the spirit of the law, and material used that isn't worth the cartage. Tax payers stand around and swear, and say, why isn't something done about it, and then hide away in a corner, for fear that they will be asked to lend a hand. The pulpit is silent because the question is too sordid to command clerical attention.

Janesville may need a revival of religion, it would doubtless accomplish much in the way of reform, if it was broad enough to take in all churches. The city also needs a revival of moral courage, and a quickening in the disposition of all good citizens to unite in an effort to establish and maintain a clean and wholesome government.

Every man cannot go down into the gutter and pick up a fallen brother and place him on his feet successfully. That kind of work requires peculiar tact. But every law respecting and law abiding citizen can unite in an effort for moral reform, and thus contribute to the permanent welfare of the city.

MONEY AND BANKING

"Editor Gazette.—Your article in Wednesday night's issue, "Wall Street and Money," contains facts and suggestions worthy of thinkers. It would be better for the country if the government would go out of the banking business."

"Surely you hit the key note but you did not suggest any plan of getting out. Many of your ancient readers would like to see your formula. If you have any better plan than a currency bureau, controlled by a commercial nonpartisan fraternity, that within a few years would be entirely independent of all political influence, we, who are thinkers, would like a chance at it.

"Please give it to us through the Gazette.

"Ancient Reader."

Our correspondent, has for years devoted much time and energy to the discussion of finance, and other important questions of public interest. He has sometimes felt that he might be considered a crank on questions of this character, and has frequently signed his communications, "old crank."

The Gazette would not attempt to enter into an argument with him on the problem of banking, neither would the paper feel warranted in outlining a plan for the government to adopt, in changing the present system to something more practical.

Stated as an abstract proposition, the government has no right to engage in any private business, unless it becomes necessary to protect public and private interests.

The government was forced into the banking business as a war measure, and it accomplished a mission, which not only saved the nation from bankruptcy, but which placed it on a financial basis which commanded the respect and confidence of the world.

But the war has been a matter of history for nearly 40 years, and among the few financial relics is the government banking system, which has long since outlived its usefulness. One of the duties of government, is to properly safeguard the interests of the people. Its representatives, from the highest to the lowest, are the people's trusted agents, elevated to positions of authority and responsibility to serve the best interests of public and private welfare.

These trusted agents are delegated to enact and enforce laws, and to devise ways and means to conduct the business of the nation intelligently, and for the best interests of the people served. They are not authorized to invest the people's money in banking, or any other private enterprise, but they are authorized to so protect public and private interests that the circulating medium, which the people use as a convenience, shall be absolutely safe and worth just what it claims to be worth in any market.

It frequently happens that people who are elected to stay at home, are people of ideas, and many of them would make good public servants, but the power is delegated to other hands and the trust is not often betrayed.

While radical changes are necessarily slow, the wisdom of the nation's agents has always been equal to the emergency, and it is safe to assume that the banking business will adjust itself to changed conditions, and keep pace with the progress of the age. In the meantime let us continue to do business and make hay while the sun shines.

La Follette's speech in Milwaukee was a strong one and also very crafty but he forgot the exact facts in many statements. His remarks about the one mill tax were good but he stated that when the bill came to him he saw it was good and asked Judge Gilson, a tax commissioner, to prepare a bill restricting the sum needed. The journal of the senate shows that both bills were introduced the same day, February 15, and it is not probable that La Follette knew of their existence until weeks afterward. But nevertheless his speech was a good one if one forgets the small discrepancies.

It is expected that in a few weeks the committee of the common council, and perhaps the state veterinarian, will need to go to Chicago to buy another horse for the fire department. One man might go out and buy a horse at some of the neighboring county market days before it is shipped into Chicago for the city fathers to send a committee of five down to buy him.

When Mr. Rose tackled that game warden out at Prairie du Chien he met a Tarter and that Tarter is liable to cause him all sorts of trouble before he downs the disgusting scene of a candidate for governor stopping a political speech to answer a bawling game warden.

October 21 John C. Spooner will speak at the opera house. Then will the republicans have cause to rejoice and listen to one of the ablest statesmen that this century has produced.

Roosevelt "The Strenuous" took matters in hand, yesterday and told those coal operators and coal strikers what was what and what he wanted them to do. Now note the results.

Thing of a Cleveland policeman arresting a young girl for lifting her skirts up to avoid getting mud on them and then of the girl being fined by a hard hearted old bachelor of a judge.

The Milwaukee Free Press named the Rose special as the "Whoopee Special" and the name has stuck. Once in a while the Free Press forgets that it was founded for but one thing and some bright articles appear.

Despite his bad leg President Roosevelt was able to preside at the conference he called and it is said that he presided most admirably at that, even though he did wear a picturesque morning jacket.

Reports from the agricultural bureau show that despite the rain and the great howl of the farmers and the speculators, the crops this year are nearly up to the standard.

It is officially stated that the next Fourth of July President Roosevelt

PRESS COMMENT.

Buffalo Courier: Senator Depew's assertion that the trust question is a "ghost" has a striking verification. All the politicians are able to testify that they have seen the spook and are scared by it.

Boston Globe: An American woman has climbed to a height in the Himalayas which has astonished all India. Give the fair sex half a chance and the eternal feminine will arrive.

Salt Lake Tribune: The two women arrested in Luzon for claiming to be saints would, of course, have had no trouble if they had but asserted the right of their sex to be considered angels.

Philadelphia Record: A letter addressed to "the boodle city administration" was delivered in St. Louis instead of Philadelphia. Such carelessness in the postal service is inexcusable.

WILL RELEASE RESERVE FUND

RELIEF IS TO BE TEMPORARY

Comptroller Will Use His Discretion Regarding the 25 Per Cent Required to Be Held by Depositories for Federal Money.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—An agreement has been reached between Secretary Shaw and Comptroller Ridgely by which the national banks will be permitted to wipe out the 25 per cent reserve against deposits, and approximately $30,000,000 will be released to relieve the financial stringency. The two officials have been discussing this question for several days, the comptroller holding that the secretary's action was illegal, but he has agreed to it as a temporary measure to relieve the stringency. This decision relates exclusively to deposits secured by government bonds and not those which are placed in the banks where collateral other than government bonds are offered.

Will Reduce Relief.
This decision will reduce somewhat the amount which it was anticipated would be released, as quite a number of government bonds have been exchanged for other collateral. To illustrate: If a bank has deposits which require it to hold in reserve $50,000, and it offers as security $25,000 in government bonds and $25,000 in other collateral, it will be allowed to wipe out the half of its reserve, which the government bonds secure, but will be required to maintain half of its reserve as security for the other collateral offered.

To Show Leniency.
The law requires the comptroller to call the attention of banks to the fact when their reserves are reduced below 25 per cent of their deposits. He is required to call upon these institutions to restore their reserves, and if this is not done within thirty days the comptroller may, with the concurrence of the secretary, appoint a receiver and wind up the affairs of the offending institution. It has been decided by the comptroller to be lenient with the banks during the present crisis, and it is not likely he will force them, as the plan of relief is considered entirely safe by treasury officials.

The robbers made a stand and a fusillade ensued. Finally the robbers were routed, sprang on waiting horses, and escaped.

Takes Exception to a Proposed Speech and Destroys It.

Madrid, Oct. 4.—King Alfonso is in serious conflict with the president of the chamber of deputies over the text of the latter's speech for the opening of parliament, which was submitted for royal approval. After treating the political condition of affairs the president intended to say: "We look to the king for the impersonation of that dignity which has always distinguished the Spanish crown and nation." Alfonso considered this a reflection on his conduct. He flew into a violent passion and tore up the text. He ordered the president to compose another speech and make no attempt to dictate rules of behavior to the sovereign. The president denied that he intended any impropriety and refused to alter the text. He appealed to the ministry and the queen and they are upholding him. Alfonso is angry and remains obdurate. The president says he will not speak at all unless allowed to use the original text.

The Pace That Tells.

In the six day bicycle races the pace tells terribly at the end. Man after man falls out exhausted. The victor wobbles wearily over the line. In the business race it's the same. Man after man drops out exhausted. The successful man is often a dyspeptic, unable to enjoy success. When the stomach is diseased there is not enough nutrition assimilated to sustain the body and repair the daily waste of tissues. The result is weakness, tending to collapse.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food by which the body is built up with sound, healthy flesh.

"I have taken one bottle of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and liver complaint," writes Mr. C. M. Wilson, of Yankin College, Davidson Co., N. C. "I have had no bad spells since I commenced taking your medicine—in fact, have not felt like the same man. Before I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I could not eat anything without awful distress, but now I can eat anything I wish without having unpleasant feelings. Last summer our baby was teething and was so poor he was almost a skeleton. We gave him your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and now he is as healthy and well as any child. I will speak a good word for your medicine whenever I have an opportunity."

STUDYING THE BIBLE

HOW DWIGHT L. MOODY'S WORK IS

Thousands Annually Gather on the Beautiful Campus of Girls' School. Rev. G. C. Morgan, Successor of the Great Revivalist.

For more than twenty years the Northfield Bible conference, held at the Northfield Seminary for Girls, founded by Dwight L. Moody, has been one of the most important religious gatherings of the summer.

Thousands of people who have heard Dwight L. Moody and been influenced by his wonderful personality return year after year to the institution founded by the great revivalist for the purpose of Bible study.

The Northfield season begins early in June and continues through September. Guests come early and remain later than formerly. Beginning with the commencement of the Northfield Seminary for Girls, Bible addresses for the summer guests are held nearly every day until the students return again in September.

The present season has been in many respects the most important in the history of Northfield. The students' conference was the largest ever held, and the speaking was of a high order. The work done by the students in the classes was thorough and far-reaching in its results, but the chief feature of the summer has been the daily addresses by the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, who fills a place entirely his own. It is not too much to say that no man, Mr. Moody excepted, has exerted a stronger influence than Mr. Morgan.

Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, who is Mr. Moody's successor in evangelistic work, first preached in the Moody Bible meetings at Chicago in 1896. Rev. Mr. Campbell, by the way, disclaims the title of successor to Mr. Moody. He believes no one can fill the place made vacant by his death.

Last year, with the sanction of W. R. Moody, son of the evangelist, and the directors of the Northfield and Chicago schools which bear Moody's name, he came to America to take the place of the dead leader in the extension and promotion of Bible study.

Mr. Morgan's departure from London, where he occupied the pulpit of the new court chapel, was made the occasion of a demonstration in the City Temple, in which all denominations took part, and was led by Dr. Joseph Parker.

Rev. Mr. Morgan is about forty-four years of age, and in his peculiar field of work is probably the most able man of the present day. This field is the Bible study and Bible teaching work which D. L. Moody started during the last few years of his life.

One of the delights of the visitors to Northfield is the beautiful situation of the buildings of the three schools. The institution was started in 1879 by Mr. Moody by the purchase of a few acres of barren soil on a group of bare, sandy hills overlooking the valley of the Connecticut. This was gradually added to until today it comprises nearly 100 acres. Today the seminary surroundings are beautiful with rich sward and towering trees.

During the session of the Bible conference several meetings are held daily, at which the foremost preachers may be heard. The meetings in the big auditorium are under the general charge of William R. Moody, the older son of the evangelist. The younger son, Paul, who has recently returned from Europe, where he has been studying in theological schools, is in charge of the meetings held at recreation hall on Round Top, the hill on which Dwight L. Moody is buried.

The work of managing the institutions founded by the evangelist now rests on the shoulders of his son W. R. Moody. This entails an enormous amount of labor. Besides managing the schools, he must also raise each year the enormous sum of money required for their maintenance. In addition he edits a magazine devoted to the cause.

To all this is added the management of the Bible conference, with its thousands of visitors, its great corps of speakers and the many details incident to providing for a great assemblage during three months of the year.

The immediate care of the thousands of guests who attend the conference falls on Albert G. Moody, a cousin. This difficult task is most satisfactorily performed. Visitors at Northfield have a choice of accommodations. One may occupy a tent on the beautiful campus or be provided with quarters which compare favorably with the best metropolitan hotels.

PRESS COMMENT

Pittsburgh Dispatch: Senator Hanna should take notice that the practice of standing pat is not recommended unless you are quite certain that you have at least a five-high.

Washington Post: Mr. Beveridge's effort to hold free trade personally responsible for the existence of trusts is not being generally adopted by the eastern spellbinders.

Buffalo Courier: Senator Billy Mason has got busy with the woman suffrage question in Illinois. It is the only thing his party will let him play with out there.

Burlington Hawkeye: This would be a good opportunity for office-seekers to interview the president—while that foot is so handicapped.

Boston Globe: It looks as though a cold and heartless government was going to make demands on Lieutenant Peary that will interfere seriously with any proposed lecture tour to tell the people "How I Didn't Get the Pole."

Pittsburgh Dispatch: Having cornered the turkey market, will the beef combine add insult to injury by requesting the cranberry output?

Baltimore Herald: There is still time enough to secure the north pole exhibition at the St. Louis world's fair, but no promises are made in this direction.

Boston Globe: None of these explanations why the price of bituminous coal is so high mentions the perhaps unimportant fact that the dealers think they need the money.

St. Paul Dispatch: A Wisconsin jury has set a valuation of $4,500 on a husband. There are a great many women who would be glad to accept a very liberal reduction from this figure and then consider the trade a bargain.

Omaha World-Herald: St. Paul girl clerks have interwoven that they will not be pop-corned, kissed, hugged or wedded by any but men holding union cards. Now Cupid is in for the funniest time of his long and eventful life.

Minneapolis Tribune: Down in Stamford, Conn., the farmers are gathering up their orse chestnuts and drying them for fuel, as they contain a highly combustible combination of oil and woody fibre. Mixed with corn cobs or corn stalks, or twisted ropes of straw the dried nuts would give body to the heat and the mixture would constitute a most valuable fuel. The forests and fields in Minnesota can, with a little enterprise, be able to yield a large amount of coal and wood substitute.

Minneapolis Tribune: Everybody in the Twin Cities will be interested in the experiment that is to be made on a large scale in northern Wisconsin in grazing herds of cattle upon cut-over timber lands. The claim has been made that these lands are better for cattle grazing than the western prairie lands, for as soon as the timber is thinned out and the sunlight let in, nutritious grasses start up. The land, too, is well watered, and the cattle get abundance of shade from the trees left standing after the merchantable pine or hardwood timber has been cut off. Thus this region, close to our doors, long neglected, may become an important source of meat supply.

Owes Life to Pet Monkey.

A Paris monkey named Albert has recently figured in the role of life savor. A fire broke out in its mistress' house, and the monkey, smelling the smoke, and becoming alarmed, contrived to open a window, climb down a waterspout to the porter's lodge and give the alarm. The porter thereupon forced his way into the burning building and rescued the lady of the house from imminent suffocation.

Seton's Studies of Animal Life.

Ernest Seton, whose studies of animal life have delighted so many readers, for twenty years has been noting by word or sketch every small fact he discovered. Among them are innumerable footprints of wild animals, most of which he gives Mrs. Seton credit for obtaining. She has often gone into an animal's cage in the New York zoo and with the keeper's assistance coaxed the creature into walking to and fro on light brown paper which would show his tracks.
